After reading all of this study etc I see that you need to do something. However in my opinion your study didn't go far enough. Seems you found what you were looking for so you're just using that information. If you were to venture a bit more I believe you would find that some other states did exactly what you're planning and it backfired terribly. To the point that it was immediately retracted because funds available were even less. I personally travel all over the country with my Rv, but once cost equates out we just do motels etc. I think you need to rethink this process or maybe try at 1 location so you can get real-time feedback.
